

Linea Sterile sterilizes their IT by choosing a Syneto solution that protects all data

Overview

Company: Linea Sterile

Location: Italy

The Challenge

- achieve better data protection with reliable backups.
- increase backup capacity.
- find an IT solution that is easy to manage.

The Solution

- Data protection with instant automatic backups.
- Limitless space for backups and archiving.
- Ease of use through one-click management.

Customer Profile

Linea Sterile SpA, established in 1990, is one of the top 10 Italian wash-hire companies. It operates exclusively for the health sector, serving both public and private entities.

The company uses equipment dedicated to the washing, disinfection, and sterilization of medical textiles, in accordance with hygienic principles, as detailed by European directives.

The Challenge

Linea Sterile was looking for a new IT solution that would offer them efficient and reliable data protection. They were facing the challenges of having unreliable backups, but also lack of space due to their previous backup solution.

The company needed to ensure protection for 18 VMs, including their Oracle database - that contains important customer records, and industry-specific software - that allows the proper function of industrial machines used for sanitizing purposes.

As the company cannot afford to lose time and data in case of a downtime incident, they also wanted a solution that would allow fast recovery. Ideally, this solution would also be easy to manage and not take much of the IT team's time.

The Solution

Linea Sterile, after considering various factors, from budget to technology and vendor assistance, has chosen a Syneto solution. This solution has stood out as a good choice mainly due to its reliability and ease of use.

The Syneto infrastructure now successfully runs all the company's VMs and ensures efficient protection for all of them. The backup process is simple, efficient and does not consume unnecessary backup space, allowing the company to efficiently keep archives of all their data.

As the solution integrates Disaster Recovery capabilities, the company can recover and restore their data fast in case of an unforeseen negative event.

In the long run, in addition to providing data security, the solution has helped the company achieve a reduction in their total IT costs.

"Our team evaluated multiple factors such as budget, platforms, assistance, and efficiency, but the reliability and ease of use were the key elements that led us to choose Syneto."
